COURSE DESCRIPTION

Managers and supervisors are the instruments through which performance and productivity happen in any organization. An organization's human resources are the engine driving quality, efficient accomplishment of work tasks, and effectively interacting with people served and co-workers. Managers' and supervisors have a direct impact on how productively their work unit operates. An agency's human assets directly impact the success and quality of services delivered to their communities.

Managing or supervising require unique sets of knowledge, skills, and competencies. NAHRO's High Performance Management seminar provides not only key knowledge, but the opportunity for participants to experiment while experiencing critical tools and techniques that can assist them to more effectively manage and supervise people. As with any skill, reading a book or hearing a lecture does not result in a person's ability to effectively improve that skill. High Performance Management is cutting edge, employing contemporary and validated knowledge. It is a participant-centered and interactive course. It engages participants in self-assessing their key competencies and management styles. It provides the opportunity to use exercises, case studies, assessments, simulations, and other reinforcement that help to anchor the learning.

WHO SHOULD ATTEND?

High Performance Management is appropriate for Public/Assisted Housing property managers, Housing Choice Voucher managers and supervisors, staff with supervisory responsibilities in any area of the organization, including Maintenance and Occupancy. Staff who are new to management and supervisory responsibilities, senior staff and executives interested in honing their skill set and those who aspire to management and supervisory positions or are being groomed through succession planning within the organization, also will benefit from attendance.

NAHRO's Professional Development System (NPDS) introduces new courses required to qualify toward NAHRO's Operations Management Certification. High Performance Management is a key course requirement in this certification process.
